WHITE DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

A superb Côtes du Rhône such as we would love to taste more often. The texture is unctuous, revealing hints of apricot and pear that evolve towards lemony and floral freshness. Very tasteful and delicate, as always with the wines of this producer.

ROSÉ DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

The palate is vinous and fresh, showing notes of pink grapefruit that have been well preserved by the screwcap closure that should be mandatory for this category. A great party wine.

ROSÉ DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

Nothing diluted here, despite a lightish, supple approach that shows precise, acidulous flavours on the finish. A herbal touch adds to the mouthfeel, making for a very pleasant aperitif drink, whilst welcome closure by a screwcap should reassure the consumer.

RED DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

The aromas and the texture of this wine are like a caress. For a mid-range wine, this is a model of precision and balance. It shows red fruit, pepper and liquorice, all harmoniously blended into a remarkably well-wrapped tannic structure. This is pleasant to drink now but it deserves a couple of years cellaring.

RED DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

This cuvée has added complexity, using a broader aromatic spectrum including flowers, figs and mint. The palate is also broader: very mouth coating and with a welcome softening touch to contain the tannins from its oak ageing. One can already enjoy the precise, harmonious style of this producer, but it would be best to wait a few years for this to reach its peak.

RED DRY WINE STILL

ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

One could resume this wine by a combination of the structure of the Estelles cuvée with the deliciously quaffing nature of Laurances, but with additional finesse and length. The aromas are precisely ripe and careful ageing has produced velvety substance that stays fresh and free of any roughness. A fine wine.

RED DRY WINE STILL

CONVERSION TO ORGANIC AGRICULTURE

Beginning to evolve towards more mint-like aromas, this seems more northern in its aromatic profile. Ample and silky in texture, it gradually reveals impressive tannins and, if it tastes well now thanks to remarkable freshness, we clearly feel that a lengthy cellaring will do it a power of good. A fine wine.
